Oil and Gas Consultants

Our business is a global multi million pound engineering and development consultancy employing more than 10,000 staff working in over 130 countries.

We are seeking to recruit consultants to join our expanding Oil & Gas Consulting team, based in London. Working within a small team, the role requires:

- developing client relationships and delivering proposals to build further business
- ensuring projects are well managed, undertaking analytical and research and delivering assignments to the highest of quality The workings of markets is examined in Chapters 7-10
- managing resources, coordinating specialist input from the rest of the organisation as required

This is why you may be asked to give presentations at university to build communication skills.

this highlights the importance of teamwork at university to show you can work with others.

Typical projects undertaken for clients include:

- Planning
- Strategy formulation
- Market studies
- Feasibility studies
- Operational reviews

You can read about market structure in chapters 8.
