

Errata for Human Geography, Second Edition
by John Rennie Short
Published July 2017

Page 6

Figure 1.1: The arrows indicating the fault line shifts along the Atlantic Ocean and Indian Ocean are incorrect. The image below with circled red arrows indicates the arrow directions should be reversed.

1.1 Plate boundaries

Figure 1.1 Corrections:

- The plates along the middle of the Atlantic are in fact spreading apart not coming together.
- The arrows along the southern region of Africa plate are also spreading apart, not coming together.

Page 13

Left Column, Line 40: https://www.pbslearningmedia.org/asset/ess05_int_boundaries/

Correction: Disregard, as this link is broken.

Page 14

Left Column, Line 6: https://www.wmo.int/pages/index_ent.html

The correct link is: <https://public.wmo.int/en>

Page 14

Right Column, Line 7: <http://www3.epa.gov/climatechange/>

The correct link is: <https://www.epa.gov/cira>

Page 14

Right Column, Line 8: https://www.pbslearningmedia.org/asset/ess05_int_boundaries/

Correction: Disregard, as this link is broken.

Page 127

Left Column, Line 47: “Figure 9.6 shows that the traditional Islamic countries have the lowest rates of female participation. In the US the figure is 66 percent.”

Correction: The sentence should read, “In the US the figure is 56 percent.”

Page 141

Figure 10.2: Bangladesh is purple on the map (implying its predominant religion is Hinduism). It should be coloured turquoise, to indicate its predominant religion is Islam.

Page 147

Right Column, Line 12: “and wrote down”

Correction: “that was written down”

Page 147

Right Column, Line 22: “Muslim calendar”

Correction: “the Muslim calendar”

Page 147

Right Column, Line 38: “By 632, barely twelve years after the Prophet’s death, an Islamic empire had taken control over former Persian and Byzantine territory...”

Correction: This sentence should read, “Soon after the Prophet's death in 632, an Islamic empire had taken control over former Persian and Byzantine territory...”

Page 147

Right Column, Line 45: “as well by a”

Correction: “as well as by a”